Adam,

We're submitting our USDN grant today and wanted to see if NYC is interested in joining us in the research of EcoDistricts best practices and a program design for cities to participate in a pilot program to build capacity and drive projects/policy. We have Boston, Minneapolis, Bloomington, Memphis, Portland, SF, Vancouver, Austin participating. Would be great to include NYC. Think it will provide useful learnings that can be shared with C40 as well.

I'm cc'ing Naomi Cole who can provide details.

Hi Jacqui,

Glad you're interested. You are correct in your understanding about Bloomington's role: providing input on the program development. You are not required to attend the EcoDistricts Institute as a partner in the proposal.

Let me know if you have any other questions or comments to the draft proposal.

Otherwise, all I need from you is your title and contact info for the application.

Would be great to work with Bloomington.

Thanks,
Naomi

Thanks for the message Michael. I would love to have Memphis-Shelby County engaged in this project, as eco-districts is an approach that we would very much like to pilot for our community. Do I need to contact the liaison from San Fran?

Hi, Michael.

Yes, Denver is interested in participating in the USDN application related to EcoDistricts. We have a couple of EcoDistrict ideas cooking, in addition to other work already underway in the city (e.g, Living City Block, major redevelopment of a low-income housing project into a sustainable, mixed-used community).

So, send the application and I'll take a look at it.

Thanks for thinking of us.

Paul

Hi Naomi,

Jenifer Richards (copied) is coordinating our involvement from our side.

Lets put lead contact on this as Sean Pander for now recognizing that it may change to someone in planning.

Sorry we weren't more definitive, but yes we'd be pleased to join the application and coordinate going forward. This could be a strong complement to our efforts with Posi here in Washington.

Do you need any information or other specifics from us? If so, just let us know. Thanks.
