7. Presentation by the San Francisco Estuary Institute regarding Biodiversity, Climate Resilience, and the Urban Forest, including their recent projects and findings. Speakers: Ildiko Polony, Council Member and Dr. Erica Spotswood, San Francisco Estuary Institute (Discussion)

Member Polony introduced the item.

Dr. Erica Spotswood from SFEI shared a presentation on the status of San Francisco's urban forest in terms of health and biodiversity.

She reported that San Francisco's tree canopy cover and green areas are smaller than other cities in the Bay Area and nation. The city needs to add more trees and vegetation, with about 20% greenery, 14% tree canopy cover, and 0.1 NGDVI.

Dr. Spotswood explained how biodiversity can be supported by cities, especially in San Francisco which is in California's Floristic Province. She shared a map showing the several unique habitats that occur on the Peninsula, including Serpentine Maritime Chaparral, Serpentine Seeps, Coast Live Oak Woodland, California Bay Woodland, Fen, and Dune Slack.

Dr. Spotswood showed the work being done with the Presidio Eco-Horticulture project. This project draws from habitat types to support ecosystems in an urban context. This is one way to promote biodiversity in the city by bringing together landscape architecture and the science of urban ecology.

San Francisco has the smallest fraction and proportion of native trees at 0.5% compared to other cities around the Bay Area. Dr. Spotswood noted that climate change will change which trees will be suitable for different habitats. Some trees that may become suitable may include Blue Oak and Engelmann Oak trees while Coast Redwoods and Pacific Madrone may no longer be suitable.

Dr. Spotswood suggested the city's next steps be to increase greenness by 0.1 NDVI through planting trees and other understory, incorporating native habitat elements into urban landscape, and planting more native trees.

Several SFEI programs in San Francisco are working to promote urban biodiversity: Next Generation Urban Greening, Hidden Nature SF, Sunset Natural Resilience Project, and Eco-Horticulture.

Member Spigelman discussed pests and diseases and their relationship to diverse urban tree canopies.

Member Sullivan expressed curiosity in which trees are going to become more suitable for San Francisco, such as Island Oak. Dr. Spotswood mentioned Blue Oak, Engelmann Oak, Monterey Pine and Bishop Pine.

Member Potter asked where there is research about the Bay Area's future climates and adaptable trees. Dr. Spotswood referenced him to the Climate Tree Atlas by the USDA Forest Service.

Public comment by phone:

Susan Ford, an SF resident, commented there is little access to native plants in the city. She stated that RPD and PW don't grow natives. Additionally, she mentioned FUF has no resources to guarantee they can plant native trees. Susan reported that SF residents don't use natives because they aren't traditionally pretty. She suggested increasing the availability of pretty natives and making agencies plant native species.

A member of the public reported that Governor Newsom recently signed a bill to turn single family buildings into multi-family buildings. They commented that there will be less backyard space and that there is a need to convert slow streets into green areas. They recommended a presentation from the California Native Plant Society's Yerba Buena Chapter series by climate change biologist, David Ackerley, about tree movement related to climate change. Lastly, they suggested changing the Council's charter to 'Urban Ecology Council' and hiring more ecologists and botanists.

8. Committee Reports: (Discussion)

Planning & Funding Committee. Igor Lacan, Committee Chair.

Landmark Tree Ad Hoc Committee. Mike Sullivan, Committee Chair.

Member Lacan from the Planning & Funding Committee reminded the Council that the results of the Annual Urban Forest Report are not complete because not all the numbers are in. He suggested that everyone take a look over the draft.

Member Sullivan reported that the next meeting for the Landmark Tree Ad Hoc Committee is November 4th.

There was no public comment.

9. Staff Report. Peter Brastow, Urban Forestry Coordinator, San Francisco Department of the Environment (Discussion)

Peter Brastow reported that the Annual Urban Forestry Report is in progress.

Peter reported on a meeting he had with Chair Sullivan and the new director of FUF and updated them on the UFC's work.

Peter reported that a Cork Oak on 20th Street had been nominated for Landmark Tree status.

Peter gave an update that work is continuing for the Coast Live Oak Street Tree project with collecting missing data.

Peter reported on a couple of different meetings and hearings going on at City Hall among different agencies regarding urban forestry, including RPD, FUF, at the Land Use and Transportation Committee.

A couple of members made comments about a need for better communication to the Council about relevant meetings.

Member Crawford emphasized the Council's role to make policy and funding recommendations and suggested more focus on it.

There was no public comment.

10. Urban Forestry Council Member Announcements. (Discussion)

Member Crawford updated the Council on the work being done by PW to clean up the city from one of the worst storms in CA history. There was a big impact on the city's urban forest, specifically Chinese Elms. He commented on a need for larger emergency funds in the future.

There was no public comment.

11. New Business/Future Agenda Items. (Discussion and Possible Action)

Peter Brastow reported several potential items on the agenda including the continuation of the Annual Urban Forestry Report, a resolution to endorse CAP, and a report on the national initiative for funding in Congress.
